World HUNDLYK OUR NAVY.—The President has received a communication from a number of former naval officers who are property owners and residents of the City of Chicago in regard to the suggestion to construct with brick and mortar an imitation of a war ship, with guns made of cement, etc. as an exhibit at the time of the World's Fair in that city in 1803.

"In view of the fact," the letter says, "that cur Navy, once so powerful, has been far eclipsed in strength and numerical force by many other nations, so that foreign, and even our own, periodicals are now disposed to speak slightingly of our Navy, we respectfully suggest that the deliberate construction and exhibition of a sham ship built of such inappropriate materials on such an occasion, will be sure to invite the ridicule of those familiar with the powerful naval establishments of the less powerful naval establishments of the less powerful naval force, and who are already disposed to comment unfavorably upon our present naval force, and we, therefore, respectfully ask that the proper measures be at once adopted to prevent such an humiliation to our Navy and the ration, and instead thereof that the trinds be used in constructing a steel vessel of modern character to replace the old wormout and obsolete steamer Michigan, which, in its dilapidated condition and antiquated type, will be an additional cause for ridicule at the expense of our Government, if she is seen here at the time of the Work's Fair, as she probably would be. The new car "Eldo" was used and was manued by Mr. Pfalischer of the Electric Accumulator Company. The route extends from the intersection of Ffiteenth and G streets to Fifth, and up Fifth to New York avenue, where, by running onto the same track with the New York avenue line, transfer is made by stepping from one car to the other.

Mr. Truesdell said to The Chitte reporter:

"We are entirely satisfied with our trial trip; everything has worked to perfection, and we have no complaint whatever to make. We hope to begin our ten minutes' schedule by Monday, and then, within a short time, when all our cars are completed, we will make a five-minute schedule. This trip to-day is our first one, and, as I said, we are entirely satisfied, and we consider the system as good as the best."

Death of Mr. William Stanley. Mannsono', March 4.-Mr. William stanley, one of the most prominent citi ens of this city, died at his home yester day of typhoid fever. He was the young-est son of the late Rev. Dr. Harvey Stan-ley and brother of Charles H. Stanley of faurel and James G. Stanley of Boykin, Carmer & Co., Baltimore. The deceased was one of the first lawyers of the State. The funeral takes place to-morrow, at 1 o'clock, from Holy Trinity Church, near Collington.

Cincinnati, Outo, March 4.—The big New Orleans steamboat, Guiding Star, valued at $59,000, is hard aground below the mouth of Mill Creek and will probably break in two and become a total loss.

PASSED INTO HISTORY.

THE CLOSING SCENES OF THE FIFTY FIRST CONGRESS.

Hosannas, Hallelujahs and Topical Songs Great the Statesmen After Speaker Reed Had Pronounced the Valedictory-Much Important Work Done In the Closing Hours.

Notwithstanding the all-night sessions of the two Houses there were no museemly scenes. This morning both Senators and Representatives had a worn and weary The floors were littered with torn Representatives had a worn and weary look. The floors were littered with torn paper, and things generally wore a dishevelled appearance.

The galleries of both Houses, except the diplomatic, were early crowded to suffocation. Every scat was taken, the steps in the aisles were occupied and the doorways were filled, the overflow extending hopelessly out into the corridors. As was expected the chief interest was centered in the House, where, if any where, a scene was expected. Finally the time came, Speaker Reed vacated the chair and retired to his room, Mr. Burrows assuming the gavel, Mr. McKinley, the Republican leader on the floor, then offered a resolution thanking the Speaker in much the usual terms. Instantly Mr. Mills was on his feet and hissed out a demand for the yeas and nays. The resolution was carried by a strict party vote.

For the third time in the history of Congress the minority refused unanimously to acquiesce in the vote of thanks tendered the Speaker. The first of these was when, in 1801, thirty-five votes were recorded against thanking Theodore Seigwick, the Federal Speaker, elected in 1797. This was the House made memorable by the Jefferson-lurr Presidential contest. The other Speaker who failed to receive a unanimous vote of thanks was James K. Polk, and he afterward became President. No doubt Mr. Reed will prefer to regard the latter as a proper precedent.

The result was greeted by Republican cheers, and when Speaker Reed returned

No doubt Mr. Reed will prefer to regard the latter as a proper precedent. The result was greeted by Republican cheers and when Speaker Reed returned from his room and resumed the chair these were renewed with ten-fold vigor. The Republicans waved hats and hand-kerchiefs, pounded their desks and yelled.

The Republicans waved hats and handkerchiefs, pounted their desks and yelled.

Mr. Mills called out that they were uttering the death cry. From this time on, until the Speaker declared the House adjourned without day, affairs progressed with a semblance of order.

Flowers were on the desks of Repregentatives Scull of Pennsylvania and Peters of Kansas, while Mr. Vanx's desk held a huge pyramidal affair of flowers.

After his vote a huge bonquet was brought down the aisle and placed on the Speaker's desk amidst Republican cheers.

Hardly had the Speaker's gavel fallen before there began a scene the canal of which was never witnessed in the House.

The Republicans cheered and the Democrats yelled. The latter filled the air with flying paper, bills and documents until it looked like an aggregated snow storm.

Then Music, heavenly maid, entered the arena. Under the lead of "Hishop" Perkins and "Farmer" Wade the Republicans sang "Marching Through Georgia," the chorus, "Tramp, tramp," etc., being given with great unction. As the second stanza was reached the Democrats broke into cheers.

As the last words of the song died out was reached the Democrats broke the cheers.

As the last words of the song died out Mr. Coleman lifted up his bass voice to the tune "America," and the patriotic words "My Country, 'Tis of Thee' rang through the hall, Democrats and everybody joining in.

The newspaper men, not to be left.

body joining in.

The newspaper men, not to be left, struck up the "Doxology." When the members caught on to what it was, they cheered, especially the Democrats.

The press gang followed with "Listen to My Tale of Woe," amid great-laughter. They closed their part of the concert with "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." rendering it "Reed's a Jolly Good Fellow." By this time the floor was packed with men and women, who had crowded in when the doors were thrown open, and they all joined in, until the volume of sound nearly raised the roof.

when the doors were thrown open, and they all joined in, until the volume of sound nearly raised the roof.

When the singing ended there were more cheers. Indeed, the scenes attending the death of the House of the Fifty-first Congress were as lively as any which ever characterized an Irish wake.

The House had hved a remarkably, lively life, and in its death it did not depart from its established character.

Over at the north end of the Capitol, where the Senate and dignity hold forth, the scenes were of a more sedate character.

acter.

The only thing out of the common was the biennial turning back the hands of the clock by venerable Doorkeeper Bassett. This, however, is as much a part of the closing ceremonies every two years as the Presiding Officer's speech, and only causes laughter.

SENATE.

After The Chric's report closed yester-day afternoon the Senate agreed to the sherman amendment to the Copyright bill and a further conference was ordered. The Senate bill to incorporate the National Conservatory of Music in America was passed, as was also about sixty House pension bills.

Mr. Manderson was appointed a mem Mr. Manderson was appointed a mem-ber of the Committee on Rules in place of Mr. Ingalis, resigned: Mr. Casey, Com-mittee on Agriculture, in place of Mr. Blair, resigned, and Mr. McPherson, a merober of the Select Committee on the Pacific Railroads, in place of Mr. Hearst, deceased. The Senate declined the con-deceased. The Senate declined the conference report on the Agricultural bill.

At the evening session a number of pension bills were passed. A conference was ordered on the Deficiency bill.

The bill to transfer the Revenue Marine Service from the Treasury to the Navy Department was laid aside, and the conference reports on the Indian and Postoffice Appropriations bills agreed to. The conference report on the Copyright bill was agreed to, as was also the Agricultural bill.

The Committee on Immigration was continued during the recess.

House bill was passed to supply artificial limbs to pensioners every three years instead of five years.

ficial limbs to pensioners every three years instead of five years.

At 3:30 a. m. Mr. Hale moved that the Senate recede from the Hawaiian cable amendment to the Diplomatic bill. (The only question between the two Houses on the bill). The motion was agreed to and the bill now goes to to the President.

The conference report on the bill for the reorganization of the artillery and infantry forces of the Army was presented and agreed to.

nd agreed to.

Mr. Hawley explained that the report brovided merely for a change of organization, and did not increase the Army by one man.

At 4 o'clock Mr. Allison presented the conference report on the Legislative bill, the Senate receding from the amendment as to Senators' clerks and session commiffee clerks and leaving them still at a per diem compensation. The report was agreed to.

The conference report of the Dediciency bill was presented and read. Mr. Hale said there were still unsattled the questions as to the Pacific Railroad claims, the payments of the widows of Chief Justice Waite and Justice Miller, the French spollation claims and the claims of States for moneys expended in the late war and the war of 1812.

While the report was being discussed
Mr. Pasco called attention to the fact that, although there was a motion pending to reconsider the vote on the Copyright bill and request the House to return the bill to the Senate, the bill had been signed by the Speaker and had been laid on the table of the Vice-President. He asked that, pending action on his motion, the Vice-President should have his attention called to that motion.

The presiding officer (Mr. Dolph) cons sidered himself powerless in the matter. The Senate had taken no action on the motion to reconsider, and the bill would have to take its regular course.

Mr. Pasco said that the bill had been hurried to the Vice-President's room and had been already signed and was probably now on the President's table.

Mr. Hale remarked that that was only another instance of how the bill had been "railroaded."

Mr. Daniel expressed the hope that it would not not be "railroaded" into a law. He was informed that, when the vote was taken, the usual bill was not running, and Senators who were in committeerooms and who desired to vote on the bill, had not had the opportunity of doing so.

Mr. Platt repelled the idea of any "railroading" of the bill and asserted that he himself had sent messengers of the Senate to summon Senators from committee rooms. the bill for a public building at Saginaw, Mich., reducing the cost to $150,000.

Mr. Grosvenor of Ohio moved to suspend the rules and pass Senate bill appropriating $50,000 for a monument and building at Marietta, Ohio, in commenoration of a settlement of the Northwestern territory—lest.

Mr. Burrows of Michigan having taken the chair, Mr. McKinley of Ohio offered the following resolution: the chair, Mr. McKinley of Ohio offered the following resolution:

"That the thanks of this House are presented to the Hon. Thomas R. Reed for the able, impartial and dignified manner in which he has presided over the deliberations and performed the ardnous and important duty of the Chair."

Mr. Mills demanded the yeas and nays. The resolution was agreed to by a strict party vote—yeas 152, nays 116. On the announcement of the vote there was an outburst of applause from the Republican side, which was redoubled when Mr. Mills inquired whether this was part of the funeral services.

Mr. Cannon of Illinois submitted the conference report on the General Deficiency bill, and while explaining the report the Speaker resumed the Chair. His appearance was heartily greeted by the Republicans.

rooms.

Mr. Faulkner remarked that there must be a power in the Senate to prevent a bill passing out of its custody into the hands of the Executive.

Mr. Spooner said that he had seen the Vice-President and had learned that he had (not knowing of the motion) signed the bill. And there the matter stood.

The conference report on the Agricultural bill was agreed to and a partial conference report on the Deficiency bill agreed to. A further conference was ordered.

At 615 the Senate took a recess until

At 6:15 the Senate took a recess until 9, a. m.

The Senate resumed its session at 9 a. m., the Vice-President in the chair. A quorum was not obtained until 9:30, in the meanwhile various matters of routine came up and were disposed of. The first matter of any consequence was Mr. Pasco's motion, made at the night session, to reconsider the vote agreeing to the conference report on the Copyright bill and to recall the bill. The vote on the motion was yeas 21, nays 29. Before the vote was aunounced Mr. Hale asked unanimous consent to present the conference report on the Deficiency bill, but objection was made to any interruption of the roll call. The result of the call of the roll was highly satisfactory to the friends of the Copyright measure.

The further conference report on the Deficiency bill was presented and read.

Mr. Stewart complained bitterly of the action of the conference in rejecting the claims of the States of California, Oregon and Newada for expenses incurred in suppressing the rebellion, while provision was made in the bill for the French spoliation claims. He thought it the duty of the Senate to call a halt and rearrange the system of business, so as to give proper time for consideration of important matters. He threatened to do all in his power to defeat the bill even at the risk of an extra session.

When the doors were reopened the Clerk of the House appeared and aunounced that the House had agreed to the conference report on the General Deficiency bill. Immediately afterward Mr. Hale presented the same conference report to the Senate and moved its adoption.

Mr. Stewart asked what disposition had been made of the amendments that were in the report.

He was informed that the House conferrees were so firm in their resistance to those amendments that it had become a question of giving up the amendments or giving up the bill. In consideration, mainly of the large pension appropriation which the bill contained the Senate conferrees had receded from the amendments and the amendments were now out of the bill.

After a vigorous protest by Mr. Stewart the vote was taken, and the conference report was agreed to.

Mr. Morgan applied to be excused from further service on the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mr. Hoar objected, and said that it would be with great regret that the Senate and the country would see the distinguished Senator from Alabama withdraw from that the country to the country would see the distinguished Senator from Alabama withdraw from that the country to the country from that important committee.

A resolution was offered by Mr. Mitchell instructing the Judiciary Committee to inquire into and report as to the date when the laws relating to Chinese restriction expire, whether in 1852 or 1894, also when the Chinese exclusion act of 1888 shall expire. He explained that the object was to have new legislation on that subject before the existing laws cease to operate. The resolution was agreed to.

At 11:30 o'clock the Deficiency bill was signed by the Vice-President.

At 11:50 Mr. Allison obtained leave to have printed a summary of the appropriations for this session.

The Vice-President then made a short speech and adjourned the Senate without day.

Mr. Cutcheon presented the conference report on the bill for the reorganization of the Army but it was rejected.

Mr. Cutcheon then moved a further conference but this was rejected—thus defeating the bill.

The conference report on the Legislative Appropriation bill was agreed to.

The scenes in the House during the night were without excitement. Conference report after conference report was reported, but only created a slight ripple on the smooth surface of the proceedings characterized by a genial feeling among the members.

Senate bill was passed authorizing General Thomas F. Casey to accept from the French republic the decoration of the Legion of Honor: also Senate bill to incorporate the National Conservatory of Music of America; also Senate bill for the erection of a public building at Clarksville, Team, with an amendment fixing the limit of cost at $15,000.

The disagreeing report on the Deficiency Appropriation bill was called up, the points of difference being the appropriation for the payment of the Central Pacific Railroad and for the payment of the French spollation claims. The report was adopted and a motion made that the House recede from its disagreement to the French spollation claims amendment, which motion was opposed by Mr. Butterworth of Ohio.

The motion to recode was agreed to.

Mr. Holman of Indiana moved to reconsider, and a motion was made to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to table was carried.

The House adopted the resolution directing the House conferrees to insist on disagreement to all the remaining points in this pute.

Popular indignation against the police authorities was very high, and the feeling is not confined to the lower classes. Sir Edward Bradford's failure to detect the Whitechapel assassin has had a discouraging influence as to public opinion of his capacity. Much was expected from him at the time of his appointment, and the revulsion of feeling is very high.

The failure of the police also to arrest the men who robbed a bank clerk in broad daylight of nearly $15,000 arouses apprehensions in breasts not affected by the Whitechapel murders.

It is said that there are gangs of men is London who make it a business to becomes intimately acquainted with the laner workings of every bank and the movements of every clerk who is in the habit of bandling large amounts in colu or notes. Why are these gangs not broken up, the people are asking, and comparisons are drawn with Paris and New York unfavorable to the London police.

An incendiary has been brough to justice in the nerson of one George Cullmer, who followed a regular system of setting buildings on fire for insurance which he had obtained on the furniture. As soon as he obtained the amount of one insurance be changed his mame and procured an insurance somewhere else, keeping this up until he had defrauded a number of companies, and imperiled nobody knows how many lives. At last he was caught, and, through the confession of an associate, convicted. He told this associate that the business was a profitable one; that a few baskets, some shavings and parafine oil were the chief factors. When arrested had some further communication to make to them.

Mesars, McKinley, Payaon and Mills were appointed as such committee.

The Speaker stated that in the enrolling of the Agricultural bill the appropriation of $150,000 for the relief of destitute persons in the West had been inadvertently retained. He asked unanimous consent for the passage of a joint resolution rectifying the mistake.

Mr. Pickler of South Dakota objected, whereupon Mr. Funstone of Kansas vigorously exclaimed: "Shame upon you! Shame on you, you villain; you villain."

Mr. Pickler subsequently withdrew his objection, and the resolution was passed. The Steaker then rose and said: "Gentlemen: After two long and stirring sersions, in some respects unparallele! in a hundred years, the House of Representatives of the Fifty-first Congress will soon pass, with completed record, into the history of the country; and its works will follow it. What we have done is in a large measure political. Whatever is political rouses the sternest, the most furbulent, the most unforgiving passions of the human race. Political action can never be justly viewed from a near standpoint. Time and distance are needed for a rise judgment; and the verdict of history is the only verdict worth recording. To state in language which would seem to me to be adequate the achievements of this House would not be suitable to this time or the place, nor is it in the least needful that I should hear and now rekindle old disputes or fan the dying embers of struggies past and gone.

Our actions need no catalogue and all enumeration and praise by ourselves would be in valu. If our deeds do not praise us our worls cannot. Charged With Swindling ATLANTA, GA., March 4.-S. E. Barton prominent Bostou Railroad man, president of the Electrict Mutual Insurance Company and representative of several insurance companies, was arrested at Augusta yesterniay, charged with cheating and swindling. The warrant was sworn out by H. C. Stockdell, a promint insurance man. The specific charges are that Barton violated the Insurance law while a member of the Committee on Rules, in place of Mr. Ingalls, resigned: Mr. Casey, a member of the Committee on Agriculture, in place of Mr. Blair, resigned; and Mr. McPherson, a member of the select committee on Pacific railroads, in place of Mr. Hearst, deceased. There was some discussion as to the policy of leaving vacancies that are to occur in committees on account of the retirement of Senators open until the meeting of the next Compress, when they can be filled after due deliberation.

Mr. Ingalls and Mr. Hale took the ground that the vacancies should not be filled now except in cases where committees are to sit during the recess.

Mr. Gorman admitted the correctness of that view, and said that his side of the clamber regarded the appointments of to-day as temporary only.

"In response to your inputry submitted by Commissioner Ross, March 2, 180, I have this to say. Assuming that House bill prohibiting the Issuance of licenses within one mile of the Soldiers Home benow a law, and assuming further that it contains no reservation in favor of existing licenses, its effect is to terminate the authority of the Commissioners to grant licenses for the sale of liquor within the prohibited territory. The existing applications for licenses and yet granted to which you referred in your communication should be denied, and the Icenses already granted for the sale of liquor within the territory embraced in the law of Congress should be treated as youd.
